Two-step maturation

The Selected Reserve cuvée is made out of a very high quality blend which will age very slowly in time. These wines undergo a first maturation in oak, and then in bottle.

- 1. Foudres Those large barrels are made out of oak from the Vosges mountains; their capacity varies between 25 and 40hl and their age goes from 50 to 100 year-old for some. The blend is aged in those for minimum 12 months, giving it a very slight and slow controlled oxidation.
- 2. Bottle Maturation then continues in bottle for a length of 7 to 9 years before disgorgement. Aromas therefore keep evolving towards more ripe and toasted notes.
